1 Defendants The Azoff Company Holdings LLC f/k/a Azoff Music
2 Management, LLC and the Azoff Company LLC f/k/a Azoff MSG Entertainment, 3 LLC (together, the “Azoff Entities” or the “Moving Defendants”) moved for 4 sanctions against Plaintiff Kellye Croft and her counsel under Federal Rule of Civil 5 Procedure (“FRCP”) 11. ECF 43, Motion for Sanctions (“Mot.”). For the reasons 6 stated below, the motion should be denied.

7 PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

8 Between 2013 and 2014, Defendant James Dolan engaged in sexual battery 9 of Plaintiff Kellye Croft and sex trafficked her, including by delivering her to 10 notorious rapist and co-Defendant Harvey Weinstein in California. He did so 11 through and on behalf of the Defendant corporate entities: JD & the Straight Shot, 12 LLC (his band), the Azoff Company Holdings LLC f/k/a Azoff Music Management, 13 LLC, and the Azoff Company LLC f/k/a Azoff MSG Entertainment, LLC. Not only 14 was Dolan a principal in the business of the Moving Defendants, but his sex 15 trafficking benefited the business of the Moving Defendants and was accomplished 16 with their knowing participation. Agents of the Azoff Entities arranged for Croft to 17 be flown out to California, ostensibly to provide legitimate massage services, but in 18 reality so that Dolan would be able to sexually exploit her.

19 In filing their utterly meritless Rule 11 motion, the Azoff Entities fail to 20 address the facts and legal theories in Plaintiff’s Complaint. What’s more, their 21 motion incorrectly assumes that any pleading deficiency that can be the subject of a 22 dismissal motion under FRCP 12(b)(6) can result in the imposition of Rule 11 23 sanctions. Applying the proper Rule 11 standards, the Complaint here is far from 24 “baseless”—to the contrary, it more than plausibly alleges all of the elements of a 25 sex trafficking claim against Moving Defendants. The Azoff Entities have also

1 completely failed to show that the Complaint was the product of anything other than 2 a reasonable and diligent investigation by Plaintiff's counsel. At its core, and as 3 revealed by the parties' pre-filing correspondence, Moving Defendants' sanctions 4 motion is nothing more than an unprofessional and unwarranted attempt to dissuade 5 Plaintiff, a sexual assault victim, from pursuing her legitimate claims. The motion
 6 should be denied and Plaintiff should be awarded her fees and costs.¹

7 RELEVANT FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

8 I. Factual Background

9 As alleged in the Complaint, Croft was a Licensed Massage Therapist who 10 ran her own massage business. ECF 1, Complaint ("Compl.") at ¶ 23.² In 2013, she 11 struck it big when she was invited by Glenn Frey of well-known rock band the Eagles 12 to join the Eagles on tour as their massage therapist. Id. at ¶¶ 24-25. While touring, 13 she met Dolan, who was the lead singer of the band opening for the Eagles, JD & 14 the Straight Shot. Id. at ¶ 32. At the time, Dolan helped lead a joint venture between 15 the Eagles, JD & the Straight Shot, and the Azoff Entities. Id. at ¶ 35. In particular, 16 Dolan was an ongoing business partner in Azoff MSG Entertainment LLC³ (i.e., The 17 Azoff Company LLC and, hereinafter for clarity, "MSG Entertainment") alongside 18

19 ¹ See FRCP 11, 1993 Advisory Committee Notes ("As under former Rule 11, the 20 filing of a motion for sanctions is itself subject to the requirements of the rule and can lead 21 to sanctions. However, service of a cross motion under Rule 11 should rarely be needed 22 since under the revision the court may award to the person who prevails on a motion under 23 Rule 11—whether the movant or the target of the motion—reasonable expenses, including 24 attorney's fees, incurred in presenting or opposing the motion.").

25 ² On April 10, 2024, Plaintiff filed an Amended Complaint as of right under FRCP 26 15(a). ECF 48. Still, for purposes of the Azoff Entities' Rule 11 motion, Plaintiff refers 27 only to the initial Complaint.

28 ³ This opposition refers to Defendants Azoff Entities with the corporate names used 29 at the time of the events in the Complaint.

1 entertainment executive Irving Azoff. Id. Dolan co-founded MSG Entertainment 2 with Azoff in September 2013 by contributing $175,000,000. Id. at ¶ 35, 101. The 3 other contribution to this joint venture came from defendant Azoff Music 4 Management, LLC (i.e. “the Azoff Company Holdings LLC,” and, hereinafter for 5 clarity, “Music Management”). Id. at ¶ 17. This joint venture, MSG Entertainment, 6 managed the tour of the Eagles and JD & the Straight Shot. Id. at ¶ 35, 101. Through 7 his contribution to MSG Entertainment, Dolan was able to place his mediocre band, 8 JD & the Straight Shot, as the opening act for the infinitely more famous Eagles. Id.
9 at ¶ 35.

10 Of this joint venture between Dolan and Music Management, Dolan said 11 publicly that Azoff “was going to run everything” that Dolan would be a “partner” 12 and that Dolan would exercise corporate control over the joint venture in lieu of a 13 board of directors. Id. Dolan’s position allowed him to call the shots on the tour. Id.
14 at ¶ 39. It also effectively made Croft an employee of both the Eagles and Dolan. Id.
15 at ¶ 48. Dolan used this power to sexually exploit Croft. In late 2013, while Croft 16 was giving Dolan a professional massage, he pressured her to have sex with him, 17 using a combination of economic power and physical force. Id. at ¶ 40-45.

18 In early 2014, the Azoff Entities, through their agent Marc Robbins, and at 19 the request of Dolan, arranged for Croft to fly to Los Angeles, California, ostensibly 20 to perform massage work. Id. at ¶ 48, 52. Robbins expensed this flight to JD & the 21 Straight Shot. Id. Then, Robbins arranged for Azoff security staff to pick Croft up at 22 the airport and bring her to stay at the Peninsula Hotel in Beverly Hills. Id. at ¶ 50.
23 This meant she was housed not with the Eagles, as she usually would be on tour, but 24 with Dolan and his band. Id. But Dolan and the Azoff Entities had arranged this 25 travel without any legitimate business reason, since the Eagles did not need a

1 masseuse in Los Angeles. Id. at ¶ 49. Croft performed almost no work during this 2 trip and spent most of it alone. Id. at ¶ 51. Her presence was so that Dolan could 3 continue to sexually exploit her. Through the knowledge of their agents Dolan, 4 Robbins, and others, the Azoff Entities knew this. Id. at ¶ 52.

5 Dolan also wanted Croft in Los Angeles so she could be exploited by his close 6 friend, Harvey Weinstein. Early in 2014, Dolan encouraged Croft to go shopping 7 and have dinner with two female assistants from Irving Azoff Management. Id. at ¶ 8 56. When she returned to the Peninsula holding a to-go box for Dolan, another 9 stranger—a large man—joined her in the elevator and asked “who is that to-go box 10 for?” Id. at ¶¶ 57-58. When she responded it was for Dolan, the man began gushing 11 that Dolan was his friend and had said great things about Croft as a massage 12 therapist. Id. at ¶ 59. The man then introduced himself as Harvey Weinstein and 13 began telling Croft that there were opportunities for her as a masseuse on his movie 14 sets. Id. at ¶ 61. She responded that she would be happy to discuss such a role and 15 joined him in his suite to do so. Id. at ¶¶ 62-63.

16 The meeting took a turn when Weinstein first tried to get Croft to try on 17 clothes in front of him and then tried to get her to give him a massage. Id. at ¶¶ 65-18 70. Weinstein tried increasingly aggressive steps to try to force her to massage him, 19 then tried to block Croft’s escape from the room. Id. At ¶¶ 71-77. Though he relented 20 and let her go, he then followed her down the hallway to her room, forcibly pushed 21 her door open, forced Croft onto a bed, forced her legs open, digitally penetrated her 22 while holding her down, then tried to force his penis inside of her. Id. at ¶¶ 78-81.
 23 As she struggled, Dolan called her and she picked up the phone, finally prompting 24 Weinstein to leave her room. Id. at ¶¶ 82-83. As he did so, he warned her that Dolan 25 was “going to be very disappointed [she] led [him] on.” Id. at ¶ 84.

1 It was no coincidence that Weinstein had joined her in the elevator, already 2 knowing her identity, and seeming to know to ask a question that would play 3 perfectly and quickly into his modus operandi of coercing women into sex. Dolan 4 had orchestrated the encounter, id. at ¶ 11, as demonstrated by the unusual request 5 that she first have dinner out, followed by Weinstein’s meeting her in the elevator.
6 After Croft made her way to Dolan and told him what happened with Weinstein, he 7 admitted he had known that Weinstein had “serious issues,” was a “troubled person” 8 and not “safe,” though showing little empathy otherwise. Id. at ¶ 87. In short, Dolan 9 had set up Croft to be sexually abused by Weinstein.

II. Procedural Background

Plaintiff filed her Complaint on January 16, 2024. ECF 1. Although Moving Defendants' motion for sanctions is based on that document, counsel for the Azoff Entities nevertheless contend that pre-filing settlement negotiations are relevant to the Court's evaluation of its motion. However, Moving Defendants set forth an incomplete account of the events that occurred prior to filing of the Complaint.

On January 10, 2024, counsel for Plaintiff provided a draft complaint, clearly marked “For Settlement Purposes Only” to an attorney who represented he was speaking to both Defendant Dolan and the Azoff Entity Defendants. See Decl. of M. Firetog in Support of Plaintiff’s Opposition ¶ 3. Defendants have filed this confidential settlement exchange on the docket. Id. Four days later, on January 14, 2024, Daniel Petrocelli of O’Melveny & Meyers, counsel for Defendants Azoff Entities, sent a letter stating that Croft’s draft complaint—which had been shared confidentially for purposes of settlement discussions only—did not contain plausible allegations of sex trafficking against the Azoff Entities. Id. ¶ 4. The letter stated that if the draft complaint were to be filed, that the Azoff Entities would “have no choice

1 but to pursue Rule 11 sanctions.” Id. Petrocelli’s further letter stated that it was 2 “untrue” that the Azoff Entities confirmed that Croft’s flights to California would be 3 expensed on “the JD credit card” and that the Azoff Entities “did not” book Croft’s 4 stay at The Peninsula Hotel. Id. ¶ 5.

5 Contrary to Petrocelli’s claims, Plaintiff was in possession of a January 2014
6 email from Marc Robbins (using the email address marc.robbins@azoffmusic.com) showing that Plaintiff’s flights and lodging were confirmed, and which noted that 7 the charges would be expensed on “the JD credit card.” Plaintiff shared information
8 about this evidence with Petrocelli, who acknowledged that (despite his Rule 11 9 threats) he was still getting up to speed about the facts of the case. Id. ¶ 6. Plaintiff 10 also supplemented her draft complaint prior to filing by adding details about Dolan’s 11 relationship with the Azoff Entity Defendants and about how the Azoff Entities 12 knew or were reckless to the fact that Croft was being flown out to California at 13 Dolan’s request and for Dolan’s sexual gratification. Plaintiff added other clarifying 14 facts concerning Dolan and Azoff’s joint venture, and provided more detail about 15 the email evidence showing the Azoff Entities’ participation in the events described 16 in the Complaint. See, e.g., Compl. ¶¶ 35, 48, 49, 50, 52. Plaintiff also chose to 17 remove her proposed claim under California’s sex trafficking statute in light of 18 statute of limitations concerns. See Firetov Decl. ¶¶ 7-9.

19
20 The day after sending their letter threatening Rule 11 sanctions if Plaintiff
21 were to file her lawsuit, counsel for Defendants again asked Plaintiff for a tolling 22 agreement to “at least settle out” the Azoff Entities. But the Azoff Entities provided 23 no documents, affidavits, or other evidence to suggest that Plaintiff’s claims were 24 factually or legally baseless. Given the sound factual and legal bases of Plaintiff’s 25 lawsuit, Plaintiff filed her Complaint the following day. Id. ¶¶ 10-11.

1 On March 1, 2024—45 days after Plaintiff filed her Complaint—the Azoff 2 Entities served Plaintiff’s counsel with a Rule 11 Safe Harbor Letter. Id. ¶ 14. The 3 letter contained similar arguments concerning the purported deficiencies of 4 Plaintiff’s Complaint as those contained in the Azoff Entities’ January 14, 2024
5 letter. Id. During the safe harbor period, Plaintiff responded to Moving Defendants’ 6 letter, explaining that the Complaint more than plausibly stated a claim against the 7 Azoff Entities and that their proposed Rule 11 motion was itself frivolous and should 8 not be filed. ECF 43-5. Moving Defendants did not respond to that letter. Firetog 9 Decl. ¶ 15.

10 DISCUSSION

11 I. Legal Standard

12 “Rule 11 is an extraordinary remedy” and is reserved for “the rare and 13 exceptional case.” Frost v. LG Elecs. Inc., No. 16 Civ. 05206 (BLF), 2017 WL 14 2775041, at *2 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2017). To satisfy the standard for Rule 11 15 sanctions for an allegedly frivolous claim, the moving party must show that the claim 16 is ““both baseless and made without a reasonable and competent inquiry.”” Id. at *2 17 (quoting Townsend v. Holman Consulting Corp., 929 F.2d 1358, 1362 (9th Cir.
18 1990) (emphasis in original); Est. of Blue v. Cnty. of Los Angeles, 120 F.3d 982, 985 19 (9th Cir. 1997) (Rule 11 satisfied only where claims are “both baseless and made 20 without a reasonable and competent inquiry”). Because Rule 11 is such an 21 extraordinary remedy, it is “one to be exercised with extreme caution.” Operating 22 Engineers Pension Tr. v. A-C Co., 859 F.2d 1336, 1345 (9th Cir. 1988).

23 The Complaint against the Azoff Entities is not baseless and is not remotely 24 sanctionable. As discussed below, Moving Defendants’ sanctions motion is a bad 25
26

1 faith attempt to dissuade Plaintiff, a trafficking victim, from pursuing legitimate 2 claims.⁴

3 II. The Azoff Entities Improperly Invoke Rule 11 to Make Arguments
 4 Under Rule 12(b)(6)

5 Moving Defendants' motion makes no real attempt to show that Plaintiff's 6 claims are baseless, either factually or legally. For example, the Azoff Entities offer 7 no evidence to show they were not involved in recruiting plaintiff for the California 8 leg of the tour, or that they did not make arrangements for Plaintiff to fly to 9 California and stay at the Peninsula Hotel. Instead, the Azoff Entities argue that 10 Plaintiff has insufficiently alleged contested circumstantial evidence of intent, 11 knowledge, and involvement. See Mot. at 3-6. But in making such arguments, 12 Moving Defendants fail to recognize that "the Twombly plausibility standard is not 13 identical to the Rule 11 standard for a baseless claim." In re California Bail Bond 14 Antitrust Litig., 511 F. Supp. 3d 1031, 1054 (N.D. Cal. 2021). "If it were, every Rule 15 12(b)(6) motion would be accompanied by a motion for sanctions." Id.

16 For that reason, "Rule 11 should not be used to raise issues as to the legal 17 sufficiency of a claim or defense that more appropriately can be disposed of by a 18 motion to dismiss." Charles Alan. Wright & Arthur R. Miller, 5A Fed. Prac. & Proc.

 7 Committee Notes (explaining that Rule 11 motions “should not be employed as a 8 discovery device or to test the legal sufficiency or efficacy of allegations in the 9 pleadings; other motions are available for those purposes”). Yet that is precisely 10 what Moving Defendants do—their arguments for dismissal are largely the same as 11 their arguments in favor of sanctions. Compare ECF 44 at 5:10-12:23 with ECF 43 12 at 4:2-6:12.

13 Beyond that impropriety, Moving Defendants also ask for favorable 14 inferences that would be inappropriate at summary judgment, let alone on a motion 15 to dismiss. Moving Defendants argue, for instance, that “Marc Robbins was an 16 independent contractor—not an executive—of the Azoff Entities.” Mot. at 2 n.4. But 17 Robbins had an Azoff email address during the relevant period and has been 18 identified in the press as working for Azoff music. Robbins’ role will be an issue of 19 fact to be decided by a jury under all the facts and circumstances. Estrada v. FedEx 20 Ground Package Sys., Inc., 154 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10-11 (Cal. App. 2007) (“The 21 parties’ label is not dispositive and will be ignored if their actual conduct establishes 22 a different relationship.”). Moving Defendants also argue that “the Complaint does 23 not even allege that Dolan acted inappropriately towards Plaintiff.” Mot. at 4. But 24 this again tendentiously ignores the Complaint’s allegations. Compl. at ¶¶ 104-107.
 25 Moving Defendants call Croft’s entrapment by Weinstein a “chance encounter.”

1 Mot. at 4. The Complaint, in fact, alleges that “Dolan fraudulently coordinate[d] a 2 meeting between Ms. Croft and Harvey Weinstein,” Compl. at p. 15, and there are 3 ample facts to establish that it was not just a coincidence that Weinstein knew where 4 to find Croft; had already discussed her with Dolan; and that Dolan knew about 5 Weinstein’s tendency to assault women.

6 Moving Defendants’ improper use of Rule 11 as a vehicle to challenge the 7 legal sufficiency of Plaintiff’s claims reflects that the Azoff Entities’ true purpose in 8 moving for sanctions—to harass and intimidate Plaintiff.

9 III. Moving Defendants’ Dismissal Arguments Lack Merit

10 In any case, Moving Defendants’ arguments against the Complaint are wrong.

11 A. The Complaint Alleges Knowing Participation in Sex Trafficking

12 To establish venture liability under 18 U.S.C. § 1595(a), the Trafficking
 13 Victims Prevention Reauthorization Act (“TVPRA”), Plaintiff must allege, and here 14 does allege, that the Azoff Entities “knowingly benefit[ted] . . . by receiving anything 15 of value from participation in a venture which [they] knew or should have known 16 has engaged in an act in violation of this chapter.” The Azoff Entities’ principal 17 argument is that they did not know that Plaintiff would be compelled to engage in a 18 commercial sex act by “force, fraud, [or] coercion,” so that Plaintiff fails to state 19 both the “knowledge” and “participation” elements of 18 U.S.C. § 1591(a). Mot. at 20 4-5. But Moving Defendants simply ignore facts alleged in the Complaint that allow 21 for the inference of such knowledge and participation, even though “circumstantial 22 evidence, and the reasonable inferences drawn from that evidence, are treated as 23 evidentiary support’ for purposes of Rule 11.” In re California Bail Bond Antitrust

1 As an initial matter, Defendants ask the Court to use the wrong standard for 2 pleading liability TVPRA claims. While the Complaint would pass muster even 3 under the standard proposed by the Moving Entities, the civil remedy provision of 4 18 U.S.C. § 1595 requires neither actual knowledge nor direct participation to 5 establish liability. Contra Mot. at 5. It requires only that the defendant “should have 6 known” of such a sex trafficking venture. Does 1-6 v. Reddit, Inc., 51 F.4th 1137, 7 1141 (9th Cir. 2022) (“Section 1591, on the other hand, is the federal criminal child 8 sex trafficking statute. Like section 1595, section 1591 covers both perpetrators and 9 beneficiaries of trafficking. Id. § 1591(a). However, the standard for beneficiary 10 liability pursuant to section 1591 is higher.”). Thus, there is also no “actual 11 participation” requirement. See A.B. v. Marriott Int'l, Inc., 455 F. Supp. 3d 171, 181-12 89 (E.D. Pa. 2020) (rejecting the argument that Moving Defendants have advanced 13 here, including Moving Defendants’ misreading of Reddit); accord Acevedo v. eXp 14 Realty, LLC, No. 23 Civ. 01304 (AB) (AGR), 2024 WL 650189, at *24 (C.D. Cal.
 15 Jan. 29, 2024) (citing A.B. v. Marriott, rejecting Moving Defendants’ arguments, 16 explaining that a “direct association and a business relationship,” under 17 circumstances where the defendant should have known they were benefitting from 18 sex trafficking, sufficed to plead participation). To the contrary, a passive business 19 relationship, under circumstances where the business partner should know that they 20 are benefitting from sex trafficking, does suffice. “That the focus of such a 21 relationship did not specifically involve sex trafficking is not fatal to a finding of a 22 venture under the TVPRA.” Treminio v. Crowley Mar. Corp., No. 22 Civ. 00174
 23 (CRK) (PDB), 2023 WL 8627761, at *10 (M.D. Fla. Dec. 13, 2023).⁵ Under this 24

25 ⁵ This is also why it is unnecessary for Plaintiff to plead and prove either that Azoff 26 Entities maintained this relationship because they desired Dolan to sex traffic Croft, contra 27 11

1 standard, the Complaint more than adequately pleads such a business relationship
 2 and thus is not baseless under Rule 11. See Gartner, Inc. v. Parikh, No. 07 Civ. 2039
 3 (PSG), 2008 WL 4601025, at *9-10 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 14, 2008) (explaining joint 4 venture⁶ liability); e.g., SolMark Int'l Inc. v. Galvez, No. 20-Civ. 4437 (SB) (PLAX), 5 2021 WL 4813252, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 23, 2021) (denying summary judgment on 6 joint venture theory).

7 Here, Plaintiff has pleaded a “direct association and a business relationship” 8 between the Azoff Entities and James Dolan. Acevedo, 2024 WL 650189, at *24. In 9 light of the unusual and suspect circumstances of transporting Croft to Los Angeles, 10 that business relationship creates a reasonable inference that the Azoff Entities, as 11 part of a joint venture, had at least constructive knowledge of and participated in a 12 sex trafficking scheme. As alleged in the Complaint, Dolan, JD & the Straight Shot, 13 and the Azoff Entities were involved in a joint venture that Dolan could control.
 14 Compl. at ¶¶ 35 (describing the founding of the joint venture); 39 (Dolan called the 15 shots during the tour); 48 (alleging that Dolan would pay expenses incurred by Azoff 16 employees). Dolan used the resources of the corporate venture to hire and transport 17 Croft, justifying such use of the corporations’ resources by pretextually making 18 Croft an employee of the Azoff Entities. In all this he was a close “partner” to Irving 19 Azoff and, in managing MSG Entertainment, he acted in lieu of a Board of Directors 20 over Azoff. Id. at ¶ 35.

21
 22 Mot. at 6, or that Dolan’s investment in MSG Entertainment was meant to directly fund 23 sex trafficking, contra id. at 6-7.

24 For clarity, this refers to the common law concept of a “joint venture,” rather than 25 the statutory sense. The TVPRA incorporates such common law concepts. See J.C. v.
26 Choice Hotels Int'l, Inc., 2020 WL 6318707, at *9 (discussing use of common-law agency 27 concepts, and collecting cases).

Thus, Dolan was a principal-agent of the joint venture, acting in the scope of his duties, and his knowledge is imputed to the Azoff Entities. See, e.g., Doe 1 v. Deutsche Bank Aktiengesellschaft, 671 F. Supp. 3d 387, 407 (S.D.N.Y. 2023) (allegations that high-level executive of bank had knowledge of sex trafficking venture could be imputed to bank); A.B. v. Marriott, 455 F. Supp. 3d at 194 (“A.B. pleads staff at Marriott’s Philadelphia Airport hotels should have known about her sex trafficking.”). Because the Complaint alleges that Dolan knowingly participated in a sex trafficking venture and that he did so by commanding the resources of the Azoff Entities, the “participation” element against Moving Defendants is sufficiently alleged.⁷

Even without Dolan’s knowledge, the Complaint alleges facts from which a factfinder could conclude that the Azoff Entities’ knowingly participated in a sex trafficking venture. Plaintiff was brought out for the California leg of the tour by the Azoff Entities even though her massage services were not needed, and almost no tour members signed up for massage appointments. Compl. at ¶¶ 49, 51. Moreover, the Azoff Entities arranged for Plaintiff to stay at the Peninsula Hotel, which was not where the Eagles and the other members of their tour were staying, but was the hotel where Dolan and his band were staying. Id. ¶ 50. This was a departure from past practice on the tour and allows for the inference that Moving Defendants arranged for Plaintiff to be brought to California at Dolan’s request and because he wished to sexually exploit her. See United States v. Todd, 627 F.3d 329, 333-34 (9th Cir. 2010) (“The knowledge required is such that if things go as he planned, force, fraud or coercion will be used to cause his victim to engage in a commercial sex

⁷ Underscoring the deficiency of their sanctions and dismissal arguments, Moving Defendants never say who, exactly, could have imputed knowledge to the Azoff Entities.

1 transaction."); see also Acevedo, 2024 WL 650189, at *12 ("This does not impose 2 another 'layer' of knowledge on the pleader, but merely requires an allegation of 3 awareness that, at the initial recruitment or enticement stage, certain prohibited 4 means will be employed to cause a commercial sex act.").⁸

5 B. The Complaint Alleges a Benefit

6 Likewise, the Complaint pleads the adequate "benefit" for a venture theory 7 under § 1595. A benefit includes "anything of value." 18 U.S.C. § 1595(a). The 8 Complaint alleges that the Azoff Entities received a "thing of value" in keeping 9 happy their business partner, Dolan, on whom they depended for huge amounts of 10 funding. Compl. at ¶ 101. This sort of quid pro quo counts as a "thing of value," 11 especially where, as here, the quid pro quo contributed to the transfer of money in 12 an ongoing business partnership. See United States v. Raniere, 55 F.4th 354, 365 (2d 13 Cir. 2022) (finding that something of "value" was received or given in connection 14 with a sex act because participation in the venture allowed defendants to procure a 15 "special position" and receive "special privileges" from the trafficking venture,

16

8 Beyond this sufficiently pleaded allegation of joint venture liability, the allegations 17 in the Complaint are also more than suffice to state a "direct participation claim" against 18 both Azoff Entities. This theory makes liable any person or corporation who "knowingly 19 . . . recruits, entices, harbors, transports, provides, obtains, advertises, maintains, 20 patronizes, or solicits by any means a person . . . knowing . . . that means of force, threats 21 of force, fraud, coercion . . . or any combination of such means will be used to cause the 22 person to engage in a commercial sex act." 18 U.S.C. § 1591(a). Under this theory, 23 principal corporations can be held vicariously liable for the actions of agents acting in the 24 scope of their agency. See J.C. v. Choice Hotels Int'l, Inc., No. 20 Civ. 00155 (WHO), 25 2020 WL 6318707, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 28, 2020) (franchisors could be held vicariously 26 liable for sex trafficking through actions of agent-hotels). Dolan was just such an agent 27 acting in the scope of his employment on behalf of both Azoff Entities, when he retained 28 Croft as a masseuse and used his agency on behalf of the Entities to transport her, knowing that both he and Weinstein would use fraud, force, and coercion to have sex with her.
 Because he was their principal, his conduct must be imputed directly to both members of the joint venture, MSG Entertainment and Music Management.

1 noting that “[a] privileged position in an organization may constitute intangible 2 ‘value’”); see also United States v. Cook, 782 F.3d 983, 988-89 (8th Cir. 2015) (“The 3 phrase ‘anything of value’ is extremely broad. Reading the phrase to include sex acts 4 comports with both its ordinary meaning, and its settled legal meaning. Congress’s 5 frequent use of ‘thing of value’ in various criminal statutes has evolved the phrase 6 into a term of art which the courts generally construe to envelop both tangibles and 7 intangibles. Value is a subjective, rather than objective, concept where the focus of 8 the . . . term is to be placed on the value which the defendant subjectively attaches 9 to what is sought to be received.”) (internal quotations, citations, and punctuation 10 omitted).

11 IV. The Azoff Entities Have Not Demonstrated a Lack of Investigation

12 Finally, although the Court need not reach the issue because the Complaint is 13 far from baseless, Moving Defendants do not—and cannot—show that the 14 Complaint was anything other than the product of a reasonable and diligent inquiry 15 by Plaintiff’s counsel. Moving Defendants do not actually address this element of 16 their burden in a Rule 11 sanctions motion. In the relevant section, they simply 17 recapitulate their belief that the Complaint is baseless. Mot. at 6-8. Instead, their 18 burden of persuasion was to show an “unreasonable inquiry” in light of the facts and 19 circumstances of the case. They declined to squarely address the element, likely out 20 of an awareness that controlling law contradicts their position.

21 “If the relevant facts are in control of the opposing party,” as here, “more 22 leeway must be given to make allegations in the early stages of litigation In a 23 similar vein, leeway should be given to make allegations relating to an opposing 24 party’s knowledge, purpose, or intent.” Townsend, 929 F.2d at 1364. This is 25 especially true when it comes to issues of corporate responsibility, since corporations

1 usually disclaim liability for the acts of agents and sub-entities (indeed, disclaiming 2 liability is the purpose of the corporate form), and plaintiffs can only join corporate 3 parties based on whatever limited public information is available at the time of filing.
4 See Rachel v. Banana Republic, Inc., 831 F.2d 1503, 1508 (9th Cir. 1987) 5 (incorrectly joining a corporate defendant not sanctionable, since it shared “common 6 officers” with another defendant, and there was evidence that its officers had been 7 involved in the tort). The pleading challenge for a plaintiff is even more pronounced 8 where, as here, the defendant corporation is privately held.

9 This is a case about knowledge where the allegations are necessarily based on 10 circumstantial evidence, with the key evidence in possession of corporate 11 defendants. Cases like this are exactly why Rule 11 permits allegations to be based 12 on “information, and belief.” FRCP 11(b). It is odd, then, that the Azoff Entities 13 attack solely the “information and belief” upon which Plaintiff has based her 14 allegations of knowledge and intent—they appear to have missed or purposely 15 ignored the plain text of Rule 11. It is true that such an allegation “on information 16 and belief” must have “factual support,” Mot. at 7, and these allegations do, in fact, 17 have such support. As explained above, Plaintiffs based these allegations on the facts 18 that the Azoff Entities organized Croft’s travel under circumstances from which they 19 should have known that she was being trafficked, and that Dolan was acting as an 20 agent of the Azoff Entities when he trafficked Croft.

21 Nor did the pre-filing correspondence of the Azoff Entities trigger a duty in 22 Plaintiff to abandon her claims. Defendants aver nonetheless that Plaintiff should 23 have reconsidered her allegations in response to paragraphs 3, 5, 6, and 7 of the 24 Vergara Declaration, which was served as part of the Azoff Entities’ Safe Harbor 25 notice. But those paragraphs of the Declaration merely argued what “discovery

1 would show" and opined that the Complaint would not pass muster under Rule
2 12(b)(6). Decl. of Catalina Vergara at ¶ 5 ("discovery would show . . ."); 6 3 ("Discovery would also refute . . ."); 7 ("Discovery also would show . . ."). As 4 Townsend instructs, "what discovery will show" is the stuff of litigation, not a 5 sanctions motion. ECF 43-1. This is exactly the sort of sanctions motion that Rule 6 11 disfavors—making threats to deter a filing when the Defendants merely disagree 7 with the merits of a pleading.

8 Likewise, nothing about Exhibit 2 to the Vergara Declaration triggered a duty 9 to reconsider. Exhibit 2 is the letter the Azoff Entities submitted to Plaintiff before 10 their Safe Harbor notice, and, apart from the arguments in the Vergara Declaration, 11 it is the only document submitted to attack Plaintiff's reasonable inquiry. But the 12 letter was couched entirely in 12(b)(6) language, used the rhetoric of a motion to 13 dismiss, or otherwise attacked the merits of the claim. Decl. of Catalina Vergara., 14 Ex. 2, p. 2 ("they do not remotely state a plausible claim . . ."); ("to state a viable
15 claim . . ."); id. (citing three cases granting motions to dismiss); id. ("The (false) 16 allegation . . ."). This error is even more egregious in their actual motion. See Mot.
17 at 3 ("To state a claim for participation . . ."); id. ("the Complaint alleges no facts 18 that satisfy any of these elements"); id. (citing two cases decided at the motion to 19 dismiss stage); id. at 5 ("To plead participation . . ."); ("the Complaint alleges no 20 facts . . ."); id. ("allegations . . . are entirely insufficient"); id. at 6 ("Plaintiff's 21 Complaint alleges no facts stating a plausible claim against the Azoff Entities."). Not 22 once did the Azoff Entities cite a dispositive fact, such as a mistake about their 23 involvement with Dolan, or evidence about their corporate governance, that would 24 make liability impossible. Nor have they ever suggested, either in their original 25 letter, their Safe Harbor, or the instant motion, some improper purpose behind the 26

1 Complaint. And, as the Azoff Entities admit, Plaintiff did not file claims under Cal.
2 Civ. Code § 52.5, demonstrating that she carefully considered the Azoff Entities' 3 contentions and took the threat of potential sanctions seriously, bolstering her 4 allegations and removing a potentially time-barred claim.

5 This case is thus easily distinguished from Townsend, upon which the Azoff 6 Entities rely. In Townsend, the defendant produced affidavits which, if true, totally 7 undermined the allegations in the complaint. 929 F.2d at 1366. This triggered a duty 8 on the part of the plaintiff to conduct some kind of inquiry into the truth of these 9 affidavits, especially since the defendant-movants were merely the attorneys of the 10 party with whom the plaintiff appeared to have his real dispute, and, under those 11 circumstances, were unlikely to be liable as alleged. See id. (“the court inferred from 12 the fact that the allegations were frivolous and from the fact that Wilson & Reitman 13 had been the law firm which opposed Wright in the state court action that the naming 14 of Wilson was essentially vindictive.”); see, e.g., Arcume v. Aloha Motorcycle U- 15 Drive, Inc., 15 F.3d 1082 (9th Cir. 1994) (inquiry unreasonable, where plaintiff 16 sought $30,000,000 in damages based on a $950 charge to his credit card, and could 17 not answer deposition questions about his claims). The record in Townsend showed 18 the Plaintiff conducted “no inquiry” into his allegations, either before or after the 19 filing of the affidavits. See Firetog Decl. ¶¶ 2, 12. Here, by contrast, Plaintiff’s 20 factual basis is clear, and none of the circumstances suggest bad faith. That is, 21 nothing sent by the Azoff Entities even remotely resembled the dispositive affidavit 22 of the defendant law-firm in Townsend. Cf. Vehicle Operation Techs. LLC v. Am.
23 Honda Motor Co. Inc., 67 F. Supp. 3d 637, 653 (D. Del. 2014) (“Here there was a 24 single document, which was identified by the Defendants, which clearly showed, in 25 combination with the publicly available vehicle owner’s manuals, that the 26

1 Defendants' products did not infringe.”).⁹ Nor are the Azoff Entities like the law
 2 firm-Defendant in Townsend an inherently suspect defendant.

3 V. No Sanctions are Warranted, and Plaintiff Should be Awarded Fees 4 and Costs as the Prevailing Party

5 Underscoring again that this Rule 11 motion is an attack on the merits of the 6 Complaint, Moving Defendants ask for dismissal as a sanction. A sanctions motion 7 at the outset of a case, making 12(b)(6) arguments, and asking for dismissal as a 8 sanction, is a misuse of Rule 11. For instance, not a single case cited by Moving 9 Defendants granted dismissal as a sanction at the very outset of a case. See Tunstall
 10 v. Bodenhamer, No. 16 Civ. 2665 (JAM) (DBP), 2017 WL 5861377, at *2 (E.D. Cal.
 11 Nov. 29, 2017) (concerning pro se prisoner’s motions for injunctive relief aimed at 12 entities not party to the proceedings); Vehicle Operation Techs. LLC, 67 F. Supp. 3d 13 at 653 (dismissal after a year of litigation). Given the goals and policies of Rule 11, 14 and the liberal pleading standards of the federal rules, this would necessarily be an 15 exceedingly rare outcome. Tellingly, Moving Defendants admix cases about merits 16

18 ⁹ Moving Defendants’ other cases, in footnote 7, only go to show how far short they 19 have fallen from presenting dispositive evidence that would have warranted Plaintiff
 20 dropping this suit. See Gallego v. Hunts & Henriques, CLP, No. 19 Civ. 07596 (VC), 2020
 21 WL 5576134, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2020) (defendant had presented dispositive 22 evidence to plaintiff’s counsel that a third-party scam had made it erroneously appear that 23 defendant had been involved in the conduct alleged); Lampkin v. Cnty. of Sacramento, No.
 24 22 Civ. 01204 (JAM) (JDP), 2022 WL 3327469, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2022) (“[T]he 25 certificate at the root of these claims plainly states that Spagner is a ‘Deputy Clerk of the 26 Superior Court of the State of California, County of Sacramento,’ and is therefore, an 27 employee of the State of California.”). Finally, contrary to Moving Defendants’ suggestion, 28 City of Yonkers v. Otis Elevator Co., 106 F.R.D. 524, 525 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), does not stand for the proposition that the plaintiff must always withdraw their complaint when asked to do so by the defendant.

1 dismissal. Mot. at 9 (citing Abagninin v. AMVAC Chem. Corp., 545 F.3d 733, 737
2 (9th Cir. 2008) and Salameh v. Tarsadia Hotel, 726 F.3d 1124, 1129 (9th Cir. 2013)).

3 As their motion lacks all merit, and there is clear and convincing evidence that 4 it was filed to gain tactical advantage, Plaintiff should be awarded her reasonable 5 fees and costs as the “prevailing party” under FRCP 11(c)(2). See Thrasio, LLC v.
6 Boosted Com. Inc, No. 21 Civ. 01337 (CBM) (SK), 2022 WL 2285514, at *2 (C.D.
7 Cal. Apr. 22, 2022) (“Because the Court denies the Motion, the Court finds that 8 Thrasio is the prevailing party and is thus entitled to attorney’s fees.”)

9 CONCLUSION

10 In sum, Azoff Entities have filed a sanctions motion making 12(b)(6) merits 11 arguments, based on omissions of fact and misapprehensions of law. For these and 12 all of the foregoing reasons, the Azoff Entities’ Motion should be denied in its 13 entirety and the Court should grant Plaintiff her fees and costs as the prevailing party.
